

Hi Leanne,

The ladies at the Trilogy watercolor class would like to thank you for letting them paint your image and assure you that they will not sell it.

I thought I would share the images of the class.

This is the painting I did beforehand that we were painting from:

Here's a couple of the class in progress. It's getting closer to summer so many of the snowbirds have already gone north, so only 5 in the class this week.

JoAnn wasn't banished to the corner. There's a skylight there so the light is better.

Here's the one I did during the class as I guided them through. It was not an easy subject to paint and I did better on the class painting than the studio one.

Here's the students' work. Terri's:
