

Hi Leanne,

I have a proposal for you. I'm currently submitting work for a show called Symbiosis - where multiple artists collaborate on one piece of art. See <http://hbartistcollective.org/>

I was showing a friend this morning the class paintings that I'd done and explained our arrangement over the Lillies image. It then occurred to me that I could refracture these two paintings and submit it as a collaboration between us. If you would be willing. If we sell the painting, I'm happy to give you 30% after the gallery cut - a little one sided, but I have all the materials expense.

Would you like to do that? I've got a couple images here of what I have done so far - I may or may not be able to get a panel tomorrow to mount it on, if not, I can get a frame, so it would look similarly to how it does with the mat round it. Don't worry I'll get a decent mat for it too!

Here's the catch - I have to submit it by Saturday, so I need to finish it pretty much by Friday night as I'm busy all Saturday, so I need a quick answer from you. If you say no, I understand. But a similar one I did with another artist here has already sold on her Instagram. If you sell it to one of your fans, I can ship - we'd make it happen. I hope you'd say yes.

Thank you,

Jeni.
